

Dear Sir or Ma'am,

I am concerned about the decision of Sinclair Broadcasting to air "Stolen Honor" in the present political climate before our national election. To me, it seems inappropriate and irresponsible for public access stations to promote only one perspective on Kerry's military duty. It is clear that well-respected military folk stand for and against Kerry's duty.

I would also have the same kind of concern about such a clearly debatable perspective was being pushed against President Bush.

I do not believe either kind of film should be shown on public access stations.

Thanks for your careful consideration.
